That was like her, indeed: but, jfl oot say I am like her: I do not pretend to it, I assure you: I am all horror and confusion at the prospept before us. 1st. B. I do not say you are like her in.that respect: indeed I do not know it: but you are like her in this, she is for ahvrming every body, as if the plague were, actually among us, when she knows nothing of it: and so are you. 2rf. B. Well, but hark ye, brother have a care of being in a worse extreme for you seem to be lulling yourself asleep, when yon know the flame is kindled. Is. B. Do I know it is kindled? Do not say so: I hope it is not. 2-?. B. You cannot seriously say you hope it is not you may say, as I do, that you wish it were not but you cannot but know it is actually begun ay, and more than begun, it has spread a great way already, and in a very few weeks will be all over the city. .., i 1st. B. You make my blood run chill in my veins: what do you mean? I cannot say I know it I was really of the opinion that it was stopped again, and that the danger was over, at least for the present. 2d. B: Afed #0 your first apprehensions cooled again, I perceive. 1st, B. That was too much my case, I confes-!In1 .I I/- 2d. B. And it was mine too, after the first appearance of it at Christmas last. I have been just like a sick-bed penitent as Soon as the fear was over, the penitence cooled and abated. But I feel the return with a double reproach upon me I think it will sink me before the distemper cones. If. B. Well, but do not be so positive I hope you are not so sure of the bad news as.you make yourself.1.: . 2d. B. Dear brother, why you and 1 know how these things are abroad...
